2018 FXB FIELD EDUCATION INTERNSHIPS: INDIA (Delhi and Imphal)

The FXB Center is offering internship opportunities to Harvard students. Selected applicants will work in the field of community development, child protection and health in India.

This internship will support FXB India Suraksha programs. FXB India Suraksha started its operations in India in 1991. The word ‘Suraksha’ (meaning ‘security and protection’) emphasizes on the commitment to provide a security net to all children and for those specially affected and infected by disease and poverty.

The FXB Field Education Internship program consists of qualitative and participatory action research. FXB provides mentoring support to familiarize students with such research processes and to allow them to contribute to the field. The FXB FEI program aims to improve practice and advance knowledge at the local and global level. At the end of their research internship students will share their findings and recommendations with practitioners through community meetings/seminars and a written report, as well as potential publications. Students with the different disciplines such as Health, Public Policy, and Education have been successful in similar research programs.

With approximately 2.5 million people currently living with HIV in India, the epidemic has reached catastrophic proportions. Over 90% of HIV-positive people in India do not know that they are carrying the virus. There is an urgent need to spread HIV awareness and treatment throughout the country, especially within rural areas. FXB India Suraksha programs are based on the premise that a reduction in adult HIV infection rate will generate a reduction in AIDS-related orphaning. Information, education and prevention form the basis of all HIV-related activities. These include a comprehensive package of services: awareness-raising sessions, preventive education, voluntary counseling and testing services, condom distribution, access to treatment and nutritional support.

BACKGROUND

The Francois Xavier Bagnoud (FXB) Center for Health and Human Rights at Harvard University works to advance the rights and wellbeing of children, adolescents, youth, and their families living in the most extreme circumstances around the world. For the purposes of this internship the FXB Center is partnering with FXB International Association, a non-governmental organization that was created in 1989 to develop sustainable, community-based solutions to eradicate extreme poverty and AIDS, with a special focus on children and women. The goal of this partnership is to provide opportunities for Harvard students who want to expand their knowledge and field experience in community development, health, and human rights for impoverished populations.
